FAMILY READINESS

- Family separations are a part of Army life, but can be made easier with good planning, preparation, and a strong communication link with the unit.

- An integral part of Family Readiness is the assurance that Family members are aware of Army benefits and entitlements. Family Readiness Groups (FRG) can assist in determining eligibility, accessing services, and providing other pertinent information.

  - ✓ The FRG keeps people connected and informed, provides referrals to resources and tools to be self-sufficient, and helps in time of need.

  - ✓ The FRG provides a network of communication among Family members, the Chain of Command, the Chain of Concern, and community resources.

- Additional Family Readiness information is included in the First Army 101 for Spouses presentation on the Headquarters First Army Family Programs website
